PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

May is here and with it comes some of the best months of the year here at the IACC. This month is filled with several seasonal beginnings.

First our bocce leagues start up with the men starting on Monday, May 16th and the women on Tuesday, May 17th. If you have not signed up to play, no problem. There is always room for one more either as a regular or as a sub. The Women's League will hold its annual Mother Daughter Luncheon and Fashion Show on Sunday, May 15th.

Our Friday Nights in the Pavilion will return on May 27th and the pool will open for the season on the same day. We are so excited for this year's summer season to begin.

Finally, we will be celebrating St. Anthony with our annual mass and luncheon. This year's mass will be celebrated by Father Chiaramonte on Sunday, June 12th at 12:00 noon in front of the St. Anthony's Shrine.

Information on all of these great events is featured in this month's Siamo Qui. Finally, I would like to wish my mother Linda and all of the mothers of the IACC "Buona Festa della Mamma". I hope to see all of you soon.

Ciao,

Islands of Piedmont

By JIM SANO

Isola Bella

Just imagine a lake large enough to extend between Lombardy, Piedmont and Switzerland. A stretch of water about 212 square kilometers, which Mother Nature has blessed with unique features and where man did his best to complete an almost perfect work of nature. In the southern part of Lake Maggiore on the Piedmont side are five jewels that form the Archipelago of Borromean Islands. In addition to millions of tourists each year, the Borromean Islands have enchanted famous people for centuries with their jaw-dropping beauty. They were featured in Dumas' "The Count of Montecristo" and loved by such people as Stendhal, Liszt, Mendelssohn, Toscanini, Ernest Hemingway, and, in more recent times, by the English Royals. Giacomo Casanova visited the islands and wrote, "It is impossible to describe these fortunate islands perfectly, you simply must see them. They are incredibly beautiful, and the climate is absolutely wonderful, an eternal spring."

The Borromean Islands are three small islands and two islets in the Italian (western) part of Lake Maggiore in the Piedmont region. This archipelago is made up of Isola Bella, with its 17th century Palazzo Borromeo, the picturesque Isola dei Pescatori (Fishermen's Island), Isola Madre, noted for its botanical garden rich in rare plants, the little Island of San Giovanni, and the Rock of Marghera. They total just 50 acres in area and are a major local tourist attraction for their picturesque landscapes. Lake Maggiore was a famous resort locality for the noble families of Lombardy, e.g., the Borromeo's and the Viscontis, who constructed lavish villas here, beginning in the 1700s. The Islands are named for the Borromeo family, to whom they have belonged for centuries, and whose descendants are still Isola Bella's and Isola Madre's owners. Isola Madre was purchased at the beginning of the 16th century, and Isola Bella during the first half of the 17th century, corresponding to the two islands' transformation. The soil was transported to cover the rocks, palaces were constructed, and gardens were ornamented. These works took three centuries to be completed. Originally from San Miniato in Florence, the Borromeo family was exiled to Milan in the mid-14th century, and there they became very wealthy bankers. They also held several prominent public functions in the service of the Visconti and then the Sforza families, who rewarded them with some land on Lake Maggiore and a noble title. The Borromeo family was also represented in the higher echelons of the church as bishops and cardinals, including Cardinal Federico, Pope Pius IV, and even a saint, San Carlo.

Isola Madre, Mother Island, is the largest of the Borromean Islands and is a real wonder of nature. Majestic and ancient trees cover most of the surface of the island. This natural paradise features the Borromeo family's eighteenth-century palace, a luxurious English-style park, and a beautiful small chapel that preserves both the family's precious porcelain as well as an extraordinary display of marionettes. The Palazzo dei Borromeo, though uninhabited but splendidly furnished with 16th- to 19th-century Italian masterpieces, heirlooms and paintings, will make you relive the customs and traditions of Italy during the 17th century. The palace grounds host what is considered to be one of the best examples of topiary art in the world and are surrounded by a magnificent garden, with rare plants and exotic flowers, in addition to a varied fauna of white peacocks, parrots, and wild gilded pheasants. Nature is the true ruler of Isola Madre; it is mainly known for the flowering of azaleas, rhododendrons, and camellias. Visitors to the island will be delighted by the ancient pergolas of wisteria, cedar and lemon espaliers, and a collection of hibiscuses. Tourists are also surprised to learn that Isola Madre is home to Europe's largest cypress tree, a 200-year-old specimen from Kashmir. Legend has it that Napoleon rested under this majestic Kashmir cypress, perhaps the largest in the world, while his soldiers were shooting terrified pheasants.

The second, in order of size, is the Isola Bella, Beautiful Island, which should not be confused with the Sicilian islet of the same name. It remains mostly unchanged from centuries ago. Less rich in vegetation than Isola Madre, Isola Bella housed a small fishing village and a luxurious palace, the Borromeo palace. Isola Bella, named for Countess Isabella Borromeo, is known for its chateau and terraced gardens, built by Count Vitaliano Borromeo who died in 1690. Isola Bella was initially mostly barren rock. After first improvements and buildings were done by Count Carlo III between 1629 and 1652, his son Vitaliano VI built this attractive summer palace. Palazzo Borromeo is a grandiose mansion that is a mixture of Baroque and Neoclassical styles. Visitors are captivated by this artistic and architectural gem with its halls and rooms, stone and shell-covered caves, and garden, which houses various exotic plants. The magnificent main entrance was designed by Bernini, one of the most famous 16th century Italian architects. It houses treasures of Italian and European art from the 17th to the 19th centuries that include paintings, sculptures, furniture, chandeliers, and tapestries. Outside on the palace grounds are the ten overlapping terraces in the garden, enhanced by water features and statues; it is one of the best classic examples of a 17th century Italian garden. The Palazzo Borromeo also has great historical importance, including guests such as Napoleon Bonaparte (1797), to whom a room is dedicated, and Mussolini who transformed the building into a representative seat for a 1935 international conference. Although beautiful, the two largest islands are not inhabited by permanent residents.

Despite its small size, the Isola dei Pescatori (Fishermen's Island), the only island which does not belong to the Borromeo family, is inhabited all year round. Its quaint, small fishing village is characterized by narrow winding streets populated by countless souvenir shops and picturesque restaurants offering excellent lake fish specialties. The small island only measures 300 meters in length and 100 meters in width. Most of the multi-story houses on the island have long balconies, essential for drying fish. Less rich in vegetation for obvious reasons related to the numerous residences, this small island still has beaches to enjoy. During the summer, in particular around mid-August on Ferragosto, numerous visitors flock to this picturesque spot not only to buy local handicrafts in the island's characteristic market but also, and above all, to witness the procession of illuminated fishing boats carrying the statue of the Assumption around the island.

Isola dei Pescatori

San Giovanni islet

San Giovanni Island, better known as San Giovanni islet, offers the beauty of nature and a seventeenth-century palace which attract many tourists' attention. But there is no way to visit the island or the castle since the whole island is private and therefore closed to the public. For many years, the little Island of San Giovanni was the residence of the famed orchestra conductor, Arturo Toscanini.

The tiny uninhabited Rock of Malghera (200 square meters) lies between Isola Bella and Isola dei Pescatori and offers bushy vegetation and a small beach. Malghera Rock is also famous for being the rock of lovers and can only be reached by boat. San Giulio Island or St. Julius Island (Italian: Isola di San Giulio) is an island within Lake Orta in Piedmont, north-western Italy. The island is 902 ft long (north/south) and is 459 ft wide (east/west). The most famous building on the island is the Basilica di San Giulio which was built in the 1840s. Since 1976 it has been transformed into a Benedictine monastery. The little island has very picturesque buildings and takes its name from a local patron saint, Julius of Novara, who lived in the second half of the 4th century.

The Castelli di Cannero are three rocky islets, Isolotto del Castello, Scoglio Le Prigioni, and Scoglio Melgonaro, known as castelli or castles in recognition of the ruined ancient fortifications which are found on two of them. They are all that remains of the Rocca Vitaliana fortress built between 1519 and 1521 by Ludovico Borromeo. □

Linguine & Clams

This is an Italian classic which made an appearance on my grandmother's dinner table on almost a weekly basis. The recipe was a simple one, but with some special touches she made it great. As a child, I never appreciated it. However, once I become an adult, I would get excited when my grandmother would make Linguine with White Clam Sauce.

Prep Time: 10 Minutes | Cook Time: 30 Minutes

Ingredients

- 2- 10 oz cans of whole baby clams
- 1 lb. of linguine
- 4 large cloves of garlic
- 1 tablespoon of dried parsley
- 1/2 cup of Italian breadcrumbs
- 1/2 cup of extra virgin olive oil
- 1/4 teaspoon of red pepper flakes (optional)
- Salt and pepper to taste

Instructions

1. Open the canned clams, drain the juice from the clams and reserve the juice. Mince the garlic.
2. In a saucepan on medium high heat, add 1/4 cup of olive oil and the minced garlic. Sauté the garlic for one minute and add the clams. Sauté for another 4 minutes. Add the reserved clam juice, parsley, salt, and pepper. Cook for approximately 10 minutes.
3. In a small sauté pan, add 1/4 cup of olive oil and heat the oil. Once the oil is hot, add the Italian breadcrumbs turning them until they're toasted and golden brown in color, about 4 minutes. Don't let them burn.
4. Bring a large pot of salted water to boil. Add the linguine and cook until the pasta is al dente approximately 9 minutes. Drain the pasta and return it to the pot.
5. Add the clam mixture over the pasta and mix it together. Add the toasted breadcrumbs to the mixture and mix again. For a little heat, add some red pepper flakes.

Serve hot with a nice crispy piece of garlic bread.

WOMEN'S LEAGUE

Hello ladies,

I hope everyone had a blessed Easter and that the Easter Bunny left lots of treats. April showers (and snow) bring May flowers. An old wives' tale says that snow is the poor man's fertilizer. This is true because snow contains nitrogen compounds which give a gentle boost to the soil and prepare it for all of our spring plantings.

May is finally here!! Time for bocce, the pool and the opening of the pavilion.

We celebrated our April meeting with a tasty dinner and a 20 minute Chair Yoga presentation by Tracy Swanson. The ladies learned belly breathing techniques and different chair positions to help relax and de-stress. Chair Yoga will resume in September with 8 - 1 hour weekly sessions.

Women's League Vice President, Donna Zumbo, asked that bocce team members please contact her if they still wish to play this season. If you are interested in being a sub, also contact Donna and she will let you know when there is an opening.

Maria LaMorte presented more information regarding the Mother Daughter Luncheon and Fashion Show. The date will be Sunday, May 15, 2022 and the cost is $40. There will be three dinner choices. Reservations will be required. Donna Zumbo requested items/baskets for the silent auction. Suggestions included jewelry, wine, cosmetics, perfumes, etc. Set up will need to take place the morning of the event because there is a function occurring the evening before in the same room. All volunteers are welcome. Please contact Maria LaMorte.

Our next meeting will be on May 11, 2022 at 6:00 pm. Dinner choices will be Chicken Corleone (sauteed chicken with sun-dried tomatoes, spinach and roasted garlic sauce) and roasted potatoes or Stuffed Portobello Mushroom with rice and vegetables. Dessert will be Chocolate Mousse. The cost will be $27 per person. Reservations can be made by contacting Jackie Brilling at (518) 339-9290 or at brillingj@gmail.com. The cancellation policy remains in effect. Please remember that all reservations/cancellations need to be in no later than Monday, May 9th.

Just as a reminder, we have our 2 charities that we will be collecting for monthly, Ronald McDonald House and St. Anne's Institute. For RMH, gift cards for Dunkin Donuts, Panera and Subway and pre-packaged soups, crackers, fruits and snacks are appreciated. For St Anne's, personal grooming items (soap, deodorant, shampoo/conditioner, toothpaste/toothbrushes, floss, etc.) are always needed.

There are still some IACC Foundation Cash Raffle tickets for sale. The drawing will be held at Ferragosto. Tickets are $100 (only 200 tickets will be sold). The Grand Prize is $5,000 and 10 others will receive $500 each. I can't wait to see who the winners will be!! Good luck to all who purchased tickets!!

Wishing all the wonderful ladies of the IACC a beautiful and happy Mother's Day.

ITALIANS IN KILTS?

By JOE SANO

Part 3 of 3

FROM A BITTER TO A BETTER LIFE

Removing "Italian" from a store in Edinburgh

Italy and Britain were allies in World War I. Italians living in Britain served in the British armed forces. When Benito Mussolini declared war on the Allies/United Kingdom on June 10, 1940, a different atmosphere emerged. Angry mobs attacked Italian restaurants and ice-cream parlors. The fear grew that Italians in Scotland were part of a fifth column of spies and subversives. The Vichy government in France supported by their fifth column bolstered that belief in the UK.

The Italo-Scot community immediately fell under suspicion as tensions rose between people who had previously been good friends and neighbors. As a result, many Italian Scots abandoned their Italian surnames. When Il Duce declared war, all hell broke loose for the Italian communities in Scotland. There were anti-Italian riots in cities including Edinburgh and Glasgow. Overnight, all twenty thousand Italian residents in the United Kingdom found themselves classified as enemy aliens. Additionally, males who lived in Britain for less than 20 years, and who were between the ages of 16-70 were immediately gathered for internment. As the British troops escaped from Dunkirk and as France fell, fears of an invasion swept the British Isles.

Winston Churchill defended this policy by claiming that it was necessary to "collar the lot". Italians living in Britain were interned. Amongst those interned were Mussolini's left-wing opponents who had fled to Britain after being involved in anti-fascist activities in Italy. The Italian community in Scotland faced hostility, internment, and even deportation. WWII was a dark chapter for those Italians who had made Scotland their home.

The Italians were initially held in various camps all over Britain. Like other refugees, they eventually were classified into three distinct groups. "A" class aliens were interned, whereas "B" class aliens were allowed to leave the camps but had certain restrictions placed upon their movements. Most refugees were identified as "C" class aliens and were allowed to eventually go free. British-born sons of Italian internees often served in the British armed forces. Yet others, unable to contemplate fighting against Italy, enlisted in a non-combatative pioneer corps of the British army. Wartime circumstances also proved especially in the field of further education, Scots of Italian extraction played a vital and growing part in Scotland's own "Risorgimento". The Italian communities built up notably in the largest cities of Glasgow, Edinburgh, and Aberdeen. Fish and chips shops and Italian cafés became an integral part of Scottish culture, and second-generation Italian-Scots were making their mark on the local communities.

trying for women and younger children as Italian families were forcibly moved away from their homes and businesses if they were located in restricted zones. The family members that were left behind were forced to cope with mistrust and discrimination.

In Scotland, all males of Italian descent (about 1,100) were arrested out of the approximately five thousand with Italian roots. Internment had major social and human costs: lost freedom, immense emotional stress through enforced separation from wives and children, substantial economic losses, and lingering physical and mental health issues.

These males designated as "A" class aliens were to be removed from the British Isles. Australia and Canada were chosen as the proper places for their internment. It was only a matter of weeks after the internments began that a tragedy claimed the lives of many of those arrested under suspicion of fascist tendencies and expelled to Canada. On July 2, 1940, the SS Arandora Star, a converted passenger liner used to carry "enemy aliens" and POWs from Liverpool to a camp in Canada, was torpedoed by a German U-boat. The converted cruise ship quickly sank into the Atlantic off the coast of Ireland. Of the 734 Italians on board, 486 died; it was the fourth-worst naval disaster of WW II.

It would not be an exaggeration to say that every Italian-Scottish family lost a relative or knew a family who lost someone in the tragedy. They were harmless cafe owners, shopkeepers, and young shop workers who had no allegiance to the dictator. It was the worst disaster in the history of the Italo-Scots, and it took families years to recover. It was not until the 2000s, that the tragedy was publicly acknowledged with the creation of Arandora Star memorials.

After the sinking, the British government agreed to build internment and prisoner of war camps in Britain on Orkney. Some prisoners, after the war, settled throughout the UK and Scotland rather than going home.

Post war, the Italian community proved as resourceful as ever. With greater integration into Scottish society,

Over the generations, Italian-Scots made return trips to visit relatives and family in towns like Barga in Tuscany. Some stayed, cementing the connection between the two and bringing a little touch of Scotland to this corner of Italy. Over sixty percent of Barga's 10,000 residents can claim to have Scottish relations. Every year to celebrate this association, the town hosts its own Sagra del Pesce e Patate or Festival of Fish and Chips, which runs over three weeks in July and August.

Sagra del Pesce e Patate

ITALIANS IN KILTS ?

Today, Italian-Scots work in many occupations. However, much of the community has continued in the catering industry, working in chip shops, ice cream parlors, pizzerias, and restaurants in Scotland. Most Scottish towns still have an Italian fish and chips shop, but their presence is most robust in central Scotland, where it all started 130 years ago. Since then, many of these businesses have added the more traditional Italian cuisine, with hundreds of venues across Scotland in the catering and food service industries (restaurants, delicatessen, and fish and chip shops). Moreover, the longstanding Italian family businesses are still thriving today. As a result, the Italian community has become an integral part of the Scottish national identity. □

Michael Lemetti, a third generation Scottish-Italian tailor, is credited for creating the official Scottish-Italian tartan to celebrate the over one hundred years of Italians in Scotland and their very substantial contributions to Scottish society and culture.

The Italian National Tartan was carefully created to represent the strength and pride of the Italian people. Each color stripe is significant to the Italian heritage and embodies Italian culture, traditions, and history worldwide.

The close of the 20th century and onset of the 21st century saw another wave of Italian immigration to both Scotland and England. This period witnessed the arrival of Italian professionals - bankers, academics, engineers, scientists, and artists. To escape a fluctuating Italian economy, these immigrants came from all regions of Italy, found work in many specialized fields, and, although concentrated in London, dispersed nationally and once again found kinship in Scotland.
