In honor of our 40th Anniversary, we are publishing a new section of Siamo Qui entitled Italians in America.

Italians in America: Revolutionary War

By Robert Penna

merican Co

Aside from Lou Monte's humorous 1962 recording of What Did Washington Say When He Crossed the Delaware? most Americans, and especially most Italian-Americans, are generally unaware of the role played by the sons and daughters of Lo Stivale in the American Revolution. As the thirteen colonies were British possessions, the natural assumption made by most people is that the fight was almost entirely between Brits, with a smattering of French, Germans, and Spaniards perhaps tossed in here and there as an accident of timing and location. The idea that Italians played any significant part seems to most people to be historically improbable, if not impossible.

Certainly, the most iconic images of the War, A.M. Willard's Spirit of '76 and Emanuel Leutze's Washington Crossing the Delaware give no hint of the part played by anyone of Italian decent. However, the fact is that by the time of the Revolution, Italians were firmly ensconced in most colonies, and in many facets of what was emerging as a distinctly American way of life.

By way of illustration, the official seal of Maryland, a place where many early Italian immigrants settled because of its Catholic roots, contains the words Fatti Maschii, Parola Femine or Masculine Actions, Feminine Words. It is the only state motto written in Italian. Maryland, moreover, was the home of the only signatory of the Declaration of Independence of Italian decent, William Paca. By 1776, his family had been in America for over 100 years. Paca's public service included terms as Maryland State Senator, Chief Justice, and three-term Governor. He also was appointed a Federal District Judge by President George Washington.

Perhaps the most well-known Italian in America at the time was Filippo Mazzei, a Tuscan physician. Having come to our shores with a group of Italians to investigate the prospects for planting olives and wine grapes, he was a friend of Patrick Henry. He was also a friend, neighbor, and business partner of Thomas Jefferson, with whom he began the first commercial vineyard in Virginia. In fact, Mazzei is widely credited with giving Jefferson the inspiration, if not the idea, for his famous line, "...all men are created equal," when he wrote in a letter to Jefferson, "All men are by nature equally free and independent." Returning to Europe after the Revolutionary War began, Mazzei purchased and shipped arms to America on behalf of colonial troops until 1783.

Most of the Italians who served on the American side in the War were residents of Massachusetts, many of them drawn there from Genoa, Venice, and other Italian port cities by the Commonwealth's thriving fishing industry. However, these men were far from the only Italians to fight for the American cause or to distinguish themselves.

Among the notable Italian veterans and casualties of the War were Captain Cosimo de Medici of the North Carolina Light Dragoons and Lieutenant James Bracco of the 7th Maryland Regiment, who were killed in Westchester County at the Battle of White Plains.

Major Giovanni Belli, a veteran of the American Revolution, was the Quartermaster General of the U.S. Army from 1792 to 1794, and later became the first white settler of Scioto County in Ohio, where he lived until his death in 1809.

Francesco Vigo, a very successful fur trader, served as a scout, a spy,

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the members of the Board of Directors as well as committee chairs for their time and effort, working diligently to make our club such a success. The many hours they put in attending meetings and working on various committees is greatly appreciated. Also, a big Thank You to all of the club members who have volunteered to serve on various committees for activities such

We are all looking forward to another great session of the Farmers' Market each Sunday. Be sure to support the many vendors who are there. It promises to be even bigger and better than last year! If the rain ever stops, we can all enjoy the socializing that occurs around poolside. Looking forward to seeing you all at the various activities being held at our club.

Saint Anthony Mass

By Santa Pasquini

The St. Anthony Mass was celebrated on Sunday, June 9th in the Garden. Mass celebrant was Father Anthony Chiaramonte. After mass, Fr. Chiaramonte led attendees in a procession on the grounds of the IACC to the pavilion where cookies and coffee were served. Thank you to all who participated in making this mass so meaningful including the men who set up the chairs for the mass, the carriers of the statue and banner of St. Anthony, the ladies who helped set up the pavilion for our guests and cleaned up after the event,

Family Night Pavilion

Our Family Night in the Pavilion has been successful in the past, so we began this wonderful Friday night event on June 28th. Each Friday night from 5 to 8 PM, Family Night offers food, drink, music, bocce, and good old-fashioned networking. It is open to the public. The menu includes fried calamari, sausage and pepper subs, pizza, meatball subs, salads, ribbon fries, mozzarella sticks, and weekly specials.

We need several members to volunteer to help with food and beverages. We would like to establish a few teams of ten people each, so that the same people are not working each Friday night throughout the summer. If you are interested in volunteering please contact the office at 456.4222.

a colonel of volunteers, and a financier of the war effort during the Revolution. Although Vigo died a pauper, in 1876, the U.S. government gave his heirs $50,000 to repay them for Vigo's financial support of the Revolutionary War. In addition, he is generally credited as being the first Italian-American to formally adopt United States citizenship.

One Italian-American family, the Tagliaferros, was particularly involved in the war effort. Captain B. Tagliaferro was second in command of the Second Virginia Regiment, and a direct assistant to General George Washington. 2nd Lieutenant Nicola Tagliaferro served in the 2nd Virginia Regiment. Colonel Richard Tagliaferro was mortally wounded at the Battle of Guilford Court House in Greensboro, North Carolina. It is one of history's ironies that as these men fought to establish the American nation, none dreamed of the role one of their descendants would later play in another great American war.....

The largest concentration of Italians fighting for the American cause, however, comprised three regiments: The Royal Italian, the Third Piedmonte, and the 13th Du Perche. These regiments, about 1,500 men in total, were under French command at the Battle of Yorktown, the decisive conflict that ended the war and sealed the fate of Britain's attempt to hold onto its breakaway colonies.

Finally, if there was any doubt as to the debt the Founding Fathers felt toward Italy, there is this quiet historical note: When the Continental Navy was created in 1775, of the first five war ships built, three were named after Italians: the Christopher Columbus, the John Cabot (Zuan Chabotto), and the Andrea Doria.

Therefore, while it is true that images of Italian-Americans probably will not be found in representations of Lexington, Concord, or Bunker Hill (even though Italians very well may have been at all three), and while you will probably never read an account of an Italian singing Yankee Doodle (which was actually only sung by British troops to mock Continental forces), our forbearers were here, supporting Jefferson, risking life and limb by signing the Declaration of Independence, and fighting alongside George Washington. That is something to be remembered with great pride.

Foundation Book Club by Richard Ognibene

Announcing the Fall 2013 Selections

In September, the Book Club of the Italian American Heritage Foundation will begin its fourth year of activity. The club, which is free and open to the public, discusses a variety of Italian-themed novels, memoirs, non-fiction, and mysteries. Meetings are held on Wednesdays and begin at 7:00 PM. The first selection will be Beautiful Ruins by Jess Walter, a novel that was named one of the 100 Notable Books of 2012 by the New York Times. The story is set in the imaginary town of Porto Vergona, at the base of the Cinque Terre, but is also set in Hollywood. Both the settings and time frames shift between the early 1960s and the present. The novel is filled with colorful characters including the young actress Dee Moray, Pasquale Turisi, the owner of the empty pensione called the Hotel Adequate View, who falls hopelessly in love with Dee, Michael Deane, a somewhat wacky and self-absorbed movie producer, Richard Burton, and many others with quirky personalities. Walter's lively prose weaves radically different stories together, often in a humorous way. It is an epic romance, a tragicomedy, a story that can be magical, but also cold-blooded. Among the many important questions the novel raises is whether people who are "beautiful ruins" should make the most of life as it is or

The next book, which will be discussed on Wednesday, October 16, is Christopher Castellani's All This Talk of Love. As the novel opens, we meet Frankie Grasso, a graduate student in Boston, and his mother, Maddalena, an Italian immigrant living in Delaware, who talk every night on the phone. They review the day's progress in their favorite soap operas and then each says, "I love you," over and over, neither wanting to be the first to hang up. This strange ritual at the beginning of All This Talk of Love, captures the essence of this rich and entertaining new novel of life's twists and turns, coincidences and misunderstandings, reunions and partings, which are often the stuff of soap opera.

All This Talk of Love is the third in Castellani's series of novels about the Grasso family. The first, A Kiss From Maddalena, recounts the ill-fated romance between Maddalena Piccinelli and Vito Leone in wartime Italy. The second, The Saint of Lost Things follows Maddalena and her husband, Antonio, as they settle in America in the 1950s. All This Talk of Love finds Maddalena and Antonio in their 70s, with grown children and grandchildren, haunted by the specter of people and places they have lost. The Grasso's daughter, Prima, has a plan to make everyone, especially Maddalena, happy — the whole family will visit the family's native village, Santa Cecilia together. Maddalena and Antonio resist, and then relent, and the trip to the old country produces many intriguing and unintended consequences.

The final fall Book Club meeting will take place on Wednesday, November 20, when the book to be discussed will be The Terra Cotta Dog, the second of the twenty Inspector Montalbano mysteries written by Andrea Camilleri. Camilleri had written a few relatively unknown historical novels when, at the age of sixty-nine, he wrote the first Mantalbano mystery, The Shape of Water. It was an enormous success. It launched the series that has been translated into several languages, made into movies for the European market, and has sold over 20 million books worldwide. While Donna Leon's Commissario Brunetti mysteries are set in Venice, Inspector Montalbano lives and works in Sicily, in the imaginary town of Vigata, which is really Porto Empedocle near Aggrigento in disguise.

In The Terra Cotta Dog, Montalbano's case begins with a mysterious conversation with a Mafioso, some inexplicably abandoned loot from a supermarket heist, and dying words that lead him to an illegal arms cache in a mountain cave. There, the inspector finds two young lovers, dead for fifty years and still embracing, watched over by a life-sized terra-cotta dog. Montalbano's passion to solve this old crime takes him on a journey through Sicily's past and into one family's darkest secrets. Montalbano is an engaging hero, honest, decent, and loyal, with a subtle and clever way of seeking the truth. Although he is humorous, Montalbano's views provide a critical commentary of contemporary Sicilian life.

For further information about the series, contact Dick Ognibene at rtognibene@nycap.rr.com or at 372-4919.

Veterans' Luncheon By Maria La Morte

Thursday, June 13th was an unusually wet and chilly day when it never stopped raining and the wind howled all day. In the middle of all that, a group of intrepid IACC members loaded cars and vans with trays of ziti marinara, meatballs, and fresh salads as well as bread, beverages, and all the accoutrements of a terrific Italian meal. They drove in the deluge to the Stratton Veterans' Hospital and unloaded everything to set up a buffet table on a cold and damp covered balcony. It seemed like a lot of work until the old soldiers arrived, some on foot, but many in huge mobile chair-beds. Their helpers accompanied them to a (thankfully indoor) dining room where they all Ron Soper, Lou Acconi, Ron Lipiello enjoyed of an out-of-the-ordinary luncheon. The meal was very different from their everyday food and their pleasure in the tastes of another time and place were wonderfully evident. Their appreciation for this gesture made the rain and wind seem not so bad at all. In fact, our reward was in knowing that we had done something that meant a lot to these heroes of our past. Driving home we felt warmer somehow and wondered if reaching out to others is what it is really all about.

Foundation News

The Italian American Heritage Foundation is pleased to announce the following:

New officers have been elected to head the Foundation.

George Urciuoli President
Bob Penna Vice-President
Dom Indelicato Treasurer
Donna Zumbo Secretary

Anna Acconi, Christine DiIonna, Sharon Patrei, Virginia Rest, Angelo Tarantino, and Frank Zeoli currently sit on the Foundation Board.

Donna was also elected to a new 3-year term as a member of the Board, upon the expiration of her term representing the IACC Women's League as its President. Anna Acconi, who is once again ably coordinating the Farmers' Market, was also elected to the Foundation Board.

After several months' work, new by-laws have been adopted for the Foundation. A special thanks to Rosanna Aiuppa, Dom Indelicato, and Angelo Tarantino for assisting By-Laws Chair, Bob Penna, in this important but arduous task.

In an important improvement to the kitchen in the Pavilion, several pieces of almost-new equipment were purchased from All Saints Parish. The parish is moving forward with its plans to empty and demolish the old building of St. Margaret Mary School on Western Avenue. Among the pieces of equipment purchased, moved, and installed were a ventilation hood, a beautiful new stove with a flattop griddle, two fryers, and an impressive array of commercial grade pots, roasting pans, and other useful implements. Also, for the first time, the kitchen now has a fire suppression system and K-Class fire extinguisher. These valuable upgrades represent not only a significant increase in the safety of the kitchen, but also its usability. Along with the new refrigerator, donated by Sharon Patrei at the end of last season, we are moving in the right direction towards making the Pavilion Kitchen truly up to any demand we may place upon it for the benefit and enjoyment of the Club members.

The Farmers' Market is now open on Sunday mornings with food available. Come shop, eat, and enjoy!

Friday Nights at the Pavilion, which was such a success last year, will be reopening for the season on June 28th. Come enjoy a good meal and the company of your fellow members!

As a final note, this summer, the name of the Italian American Heritage Foundation will be changed to better reflect its identity and relationship to the Club. By September, we hope to have the paperwork completed, so that we can begin to officially refer to it as the Italian American Community Center Foundation. However, one thing that won't change is that any donation made to the Foundation, particularly for Pavilion maintenance or improvements, will still be fully tax deductible.

IACC in the Community

Some ladies of the IACC recently volunteered to show Michele Sano's (daughter of Jim & Nancy Sano) first grade class at Eagle Point Elementary School (Western Avenue) how to make cavatelli pasta. This was part of Michele's students' research project which was part of a school-wide multicultural study. Many thanks to Rosanna Aiuppa, Mafalda Fazio, Maria Lo Grippo, Maria Marchio, and Josephine Tirino.

Luglio si veste di novembre se non arrivi tu ia ia ia ia luglio sarebbe un grosso sbaglio non rivedersi più ma perchè in riva al mare non ci sei amore amore ma perchè non torni è luglio da tre giorni e ancora non sei qui vieni da me c'è tanto sole ma ho tanto freddo al cuore se tu non sei con me

Luglio stamane al mio risveglio non ci speravo più ia ia ia ia luglio credevo in un abbaglio e invece ci sei tu ia ia ia ia ci sei tu in riva al mare solo tu amore amore e mi corri incontro ti scusi del ritardo ma non m'importa più luglio ha ritrovato il sole non ho più freddo al cuore perchè tu sei con me...

Riccardo Del Turco (1968) (Bigazzi,G - Del Turco,R)

First two stanzas of the song Luglio translated and submitted by Maria La Morte

JULY

July dresses up like November if you don't arrive
July would be a huge mistake if we don't reunite
But why at the seashore you're not there my love, my love
But why don't you return
It's the third of July and you're still not here
Come to me, there's so much sunshine but in my heart, it's cold if you're not with me

July, this morning when I woke
I had no more hope
July, I believed you were a blunder
and instead you're here
You're here
at the seashore
only you
my love, my love
And you run to me
and apologize for being late
but it doesn't matter anymore
July has found it's lost sunshine
there's no more cold in my heart
because you're here with me...

Women's League

Ciao Ladies of the Women's League!!

I'm so proud to be the new President of the group that has given me so many happy events and memories with my sisters in membership. Speaking for all of us, another year of fellowship and fun lays before us and I promise to do all I can to enhance and enliven our already wonderful gatherings. We all owe Donna Zumbo a huge thank you, mille grazie, for the wonderful job she has done as Women's League President the past 2 years.

Our recent outing to the VA hospital to serve a great Italian luncheon to many deserving veterans was a great success. (See the story on page 6.) Our Bocce season is in its fifth week and the teams are playing and waiting for warm summer evenings to arrive. The Foundation's Farmers' Market began another season of Sundays.

The next two Women's League meetings (July and August) will hopefully take advantage of summer weather at poolside. In the past, these have been both relaxing times yet lively fun evenings with a decidedly tropical resort feel to them. I look forward to them and hope you all will too. Michelle Sano will work her cardio magic while leading an aqua aerobics class that usually inspires lots of laughs. We'll work up an appetite for a luau style buffet on the pool deck.

Please email or call your RSVP to Lynn Indelicato at domlynn@yahoo.com or 469-1284. New restaurant policy requires our first count by the Friday before the meeting (July 5 and August 9). If you need to cancel, please help us to stay on the restaurant's good side by cancelling by those dates as well.

Enjoy whatever summer we are gifted with and stay safe as you travel about. I look forward to seeing all of you soon.

Maria La Morte Women's League President
