PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

I want to thank everyone who attended our 48th annual Columbus Day Grand Gala on October 16th. After taking last year off, it was great to see so many people coming out to celebrate our Italian heritage. I would also like to thank all of our event sponsors, our honorees, and the event committee for making this a night to remember. I would especially like to thank Regina's by ZShea for all they did to make this event a success. As you know this was their first time catering this event for us and they did not disappoint. For those who could not make it, you missed a great party but don't worry we will do it again next October.

November 14th is our Annual Membership/Year in Review meeting. It will be held in the second floor Caruso room at 12 Noon. All members are invited to attend. On December 4th, we will sponsor our Christmas in Little Italy: Arthur Avenue Bus Trip and on December 5th, we will hold our annual Tree Lighting event. The holidays are a special time here at the IACC and after last year, we are due a little holiday cheer. I hope to see many of you at one or all of these great events.

Ciao,

FRANK ZEOLI

ISLANDS OF BASILICATA, CALABRIA & EMILIA-ROMAGNA

By JIM SANO

While two of the largest islands in the Mediterranean Sea belong to Italy, there are numerous additional islands totaling 1/6 of the nation's land mass.

So exactly how many islands does Italy have altogether? The total number of Italian islands is over 450, with about 350 sea islands (including 13 archipelagos), about 100 lagoon and lake islands, and a few river islands like the Isola Tiberina on the Tiber in Rome. Venice alone has 32 inhabited lagoon islands.

Nearly every region of Italy has its islands, except three: Abruzzo, Molise, and Marche, even though the sea borders them. Umbria, which has no coastline, still has islands, though these are river islands. Only about 1/10 of the total population lives on Italy's islands.

Isola Santo Janni

(Aka Santo Ianni) is an island in Basilicata located in the Gulf of Policastro northwest of Marina di Maratea. The island of Santo Janni is 200 meters long, and at the point of maximum width reaches 80 meters. The highest rocky outcrop measures 18 meters above sea level. The islet owes its name to an ancient chapel dedicated to St. John, located near its highest rocky outcrop. The island of Santo Janni, together with the smaller island called La Matrella and the surrounding rocks, constitutes the so-called archipelago of the Italian islands of Maratea.

In the waters around Santo Janni, the largest reservoir of anchors and Roman era jars in the Mediterranean Sea was discovered. On the rocky spurs of the islet, there have also been found numerous tanks intended for the production of garum, fermented fish sauce which was used as a condiment in the cuisines of Phoenicia, ancient Greece, Rome, Carthage, and later Byzantium.

The history of the island is above all linked to the story of Saint Blaise's relics and the transfer of ownership of these sacred relics to Maratea. It was here in 732 that the crew of the ship carrying the relics of the saint and heading for Rome, handed them over to the inhabitants of Maratea.

Around Santo Janni's islet, the seabed preserves one of the richest deposits of amphorae and relics of the Roman Age. Many of these relics are on exhibit at the Palazzo De Lieto in Maratea.

Due to the significant exposure to sunlight, the flora of the island is weak. What is of great interest is the so-called Dragon of Santo Janni, a zoological phenomenon. The blue-brown lizard, confined to the rocky ravines of this islet, is considered an endangered species.

Cirella Island

Cirella Island is located on the northwestern coast of the Tyrrhenian Sea in Calabria, opposite the village of Cirella and the city of Diamante in the province of Cosenza. It has an area of 0.12 km<sup>2</sup> and reaches a maximum height of about 40 meters. The island's limestone rocks, subjected to sea erosion, gave rise to many caves and bays. The flora is typical of the Mediterranean scrub, enriched by groves of lemons.

At the top are the ruins of a military fortification called the Tower of the island of Cirella. The Tower, with sides 10 meters long and walls three or four meters wide, was built in 1562 to prevent the Turkish pirates from attacking Cirella.

Around the island are some archaeological finds dating back to the Greco-Roman period. The seabed of the east side of the island is rich in marine vegetation (Posidonia Oceanica), and there are also specimens of Pinna Nobilis, the largest clam in the Mediterranean.

Cirella island

Periodically World War II bombs are found only a short distance from the island's east coast. The Coast Guard routinely detonates these projectiles with the most recent event being on December 22, 2020.

Isola di Dino

Isola di Dino is the larger of the two small islands in the Tyrrhenian Sea off Calabria's coast near Praia a Mare. The island's name derives from the Italian aedina, a temple, or Greek dino, a vortex or storm. The island covers an area of 120 acres and has a maximum altitude of 330 ft. The vegetation is Mediterranean scrub with many migratory birds, gulls that nest on cliffs, and some birds of prey. There are also small rodents and several species of reptiles. Water erosion has given rise to many caves, including Monaco, Sardine, Cascade, and Leone. Grotta Azzura (the Blue Grotto) is the largest cave, while Grotta Gargiulo is almost entirely submerged and reaches 59 ft below sea level. The island was frequented by Muslim ships in their military expeditions to Italy in the ninth, tenth, and eleventh centuries. The Turks invaded in the summer of 1600. Citizens resisted the attack until they were all captured and killed. In 1806, the island became the base of operations of the English fleet under Admiral Sidney Smith, who tried to oppose Calabria's invasion by Napoleon.

In 1928, the island became the autonomous property of the municipality of Praia a Mare. In 1956, the island was given a concession for 99 years, and in 1962 it was sold for 50 million lire to Gianni Agnelli to develop the island for elite international tourists. Development included constructing a new 1,700-meter road from the pier inland, new housing, and other facilities. On June 13, 2014, a court annulled the contract.

Isola di Dino

Comacchio

Comacchio

(Comacchiese) is in Italy's Emilia-Romagna region, specifically within Ferrara's province. Comacchio's structures are over two thousand years old, with foundations attributed to the Etruscan. This small village, where the Po River and the sea intersect, is often called 'the small Venice'. It forms the union of thirteen small islands joined by bridges. Comacchio was built to financially exploit the river's advantages. The remnant is an extensive maze of canals, with small bridges connecting the various corners of the town and pastel-colored terraced houses that characterize the inner streets. The channels are genuinely magnificent and can be explored on gondolas, boats or by walking alongside the waterways to see the best that Comacchio has to offer.

Comacchio is not known as Little Venice for any old reason, but because this is a town whose canals' beauty can rival the famous water-based city to the north. For many centuries, Comacchio was a flourishing port city that rivaled Venice for power and influence in the region. Ultimately though, Venice became the maritime power, and Comacchio fell into relative obscurity in comparison. For thousands of years, the economy was based on fishing and the salt trade, which has given way to remarkable tourist development. Comacchio's beaches, these 7 Lidos or seaside resorts, are set away from the town and the canals and offer a pleasant escape along the coast. The more than 20 km of fine golden sand combined with a tranquil and shallow sea have earned top Blue Flag beach designations for years, making this the ideal destination for family holidays.

Po Delta Regional Park

From the Etruscans to the Byzantines to the Lombards to Charlemagne and to the church, the political control of Comacchio mimics the history of many other Italian provinces. Land was the prize over which much blood was spilled. The booming salt trade and rivalry with Venice ended with a Venetian victory and the destruction of Comacchio. It was slowly rebuilt over centuries and once again came under Papal control until the arrival of Garibaldi and his troops and the resulting unified Italy. After Italy's unity, large drainage projects took place, reclaiming land for agriculture and, more recently, tourist development.

Comacchio has ancient origins and is still a lagoon city whose historical center still retains its most famous monuments, such as the Trepponti bridge, with its majestic staircases, the seventeenth-century Cathedral of San Cassiano, the elegant Bellini Palace, and the distinctive Manifattura dei Marinati. In this old factory, eels were cooked and marinated. Tours on the traditional butane (small flat-keeled boats), which were the usual means of transport for the inhabitants until a few decades ago, should not be missed.

Just as impressive as the vast network of canals that crisscross through the town, many bridges span the waterways, connecting one side to another. Many of these bridges are impressive works of architecture in themselves, and they offer visitors great photographic opportunities and great views along the canals. The most famous bridge is Trepponti, which dates to the early 17th century; the bridge was designed not just as a crossing but also as a defensive structure. This bridge consists of five elegant staircases built at the confluence of five canals and surmounted by two small towers; the bridge allowed for the waters of the internal channels to flow into the sea and, at the same time, it constituted a defense gate at the main entrance to the town. For many centuries it served as a significant deterrent to pirates and would-be invaders looking to pillage Comacchio's wealth. On the square opposite Trepponti is the Pescheria, which dates to the 17th century, and is still a huge fish market. The Palazzo Bellini is another of Comacchio's impressive, historic buildings. It is home to a beautiful collection of the old and the new from Giacomo Balla, Filippo de Pisis, Lucio Fontana to Andy Warhol.

Comacchio Eel Festival

In addition to the historical structures, this area is an extraordinary naturalistic attraction, especially regarding birdwatching activities. The Po Delta Regional Park is a UNESCO World Heritage Site that protects an incredible wetland ecosystem along the coast. Po Delta Regional Park is the largest area of protected wetlands in Italy and is teeming with wildlife. Comacchio has over 320 bird species. The most valuable are Grebe, the Shelduck, the Curlew, the Egret, various Heron types and more than 400 fabulous pink flamingos.

Comacchio has been famous for its local eels for centuries. Locals have made a living from the wetlands by fishing for these slippery creatures amongst the lagoons' reeds and marshes. The Po Valley's humid atmosphere is the perfect natural habitat for the eel which became the main economic and food livelihood for the local fishermen over the centuries. There are 48 different eel dishes nowadays, ranging from the very delicate risotto to the brodetto (soup), from the sweet and sour steaks to the marinated fillets right up to the grilled eel. This long culinary tradition is celebrated every October when the locals hold the Comacchio Eel Festival at the start of the month.

WOMEN'S LEAGUE

The cooler weather is definitely in the air. The pumpkins and cornstalk decorations are out and before we know it the holidays will be here. I'd also like to take a moment to congratulate Joan Wallis on receiving the Cuore d'Oro award at last month's Columbus Day Grand Gala. Brava Joan, well deserved.

For our October meeting, we enjoyed a lovely dinner provided by 2 Shea Catering. We had great attendance and our guest speaker was David E. Jacobsen, Psy. D., the CEO of Ronald McDonald House Charities Albany. He spoke about the Ronald McDonald House located on S. Lake Ave. in Albany and the 2 family rooms located within the 4th floor NICU and on the 7th floor pediatric units at Albany Med. Also in July 2021, RMHC-CR opened a family vacation cottage located in the heart of Lake George village. Due to Covid, RHMC has lost many of its volunteers and monetary supporters. Dr. Jacobsen shared with us the attached wish list of items that are needed for both locations. I am asking for our November and December meetings if you would take a look at the Wish List and bring some of these requested items to the meeting. I will take care of delivering them to the RMH. I am also interested in organizing a small group of ladies to go the RMH and cook dinner for the families. Currently due to Covid restrictions, only 4 volunteers will be allowed.

Our next meeting will be November 10th at 6pm. Dinner choices will be Roast Turkey with the fixings or Eggplant Parmigiana with pasta and will include salad and dessert. The cost will be $27/pp. Reservations can be made by contacting Lynn Indelicato at 518-469-1284 or lynn.indelicato@yahoo.com. The cancellation policy also remains in effect. Please remember that all reservations/cancellations need to be in no later than Monday, November 8th.

Mangia Bene, Viva Bene

By FRANK ZEOLI

Since Thanksgiving is this month, I thought I would share my grandmother's stuffing recipe. In our house, we always loved a good "Stove Top" however at Thanksgiving my grandmother would make her Bread Stuffing with Sausage and we loved it. This recipe was actually passed down from my great grandmother to my grandmother and I still use it today so you can say it's lasted 4 generations. I hope you enjoy it.

Bread Stuffing with Sausage

Prep Time: 20 Minutes

Cook Time: 60 Minutes

Ingredients

- 1-2 large loaves of Italian bread (2 days old, approx. 1.5 lbs.)
- 1 lb. of sweet sausage (loose without the casings)
- 1 medium onion
- 4 stalks of celery (small dice, approx. 10 oz)
- 4 cloves of fresh garlic
- 48 oz of turkey or chicken broth
- 2 eggs (beaten)
- 4 oz of extra virgin olive oil
- 4 oz of butter (1 stick)
- 2 teaspoons of Bell Seasoning
- 1 teaspoon of granulated garlic
- 1T of dried parsley
- 1 teaspoon of salt
- ½ teaspoon of black pepper

Instructions

1. Preheat the oven to 350 degrees.
2. Cut the bread into cubes. The bread is best hard but not too hard or it will be tough to cut it into cubes. Two-to-three-day old bread works best. Dice the onions, celery, and garlic.
3. Add the broth to a saucepan and warm it.
4. In a frying pan, fry the sausage with about 1 oz of the olive oil until cooked. Remove the sausage with a slotted spoon and set aside. Add the butter and remaining olive oil to the pan. Add the celery, onions and garlic and sauté for about 10 minutes until the onions are translucent and the celery is cooked through.
5. Add the bread cubes to a large metal or glass mixing bowl. Add the sausage and the cooked vegetable mixture, including the butter/oil mixture. Add the bell seasoning, granulated garlic, parsley, salt, and pepper. Add the warm broth to the bread, mixing it together so the bread gets soft. Add the eggs and stir again.

6. Add the stuffing mixture to a baking dish and add a few pats of butter to the top and bake in the oven for about 1 hour. Serve hot.

The event featured distinguished members of the Italian American community, great food with a big thank you to Regina's by 2Shea, plenty to drink and, of course, dancing.

This year we honored Richard Rosetti as our Italian American of the Year. We also awarded the Italian Spirit Award to the Honorable Daniel P. McCoy. IACC member awards were given to Carlo Ricupero who was awarded the President's Award, Joe Guastamacchia who received the Pasquale Tirino Service Award and Joan Wallis who was given the Heart of Gold Award.

The event was a testament to the Italian spirit being alive and well at the IACC. Plans are already underway for next year's gala on Saturday, October 15, 2022. Mark your calendars you won't want to miss it.
